BUSES CAN OPERATE ANYWHERE IN OHIO

UTILITIES COMMISSION HAS GRANTED PERMISSION

To the Buckeye Special Transit Company of Columbus to Conduct Irregular Bus Route Anywhere in the State—But Cannot Operate Regularly Over Any Route Which Is Served By a Bus, Steam or Interurban Railroad.

By granting a certificate Monday to the Buckeye Special Transit company of Columbus, to conduct an irregular bus route anywhere in the state, the utilities commission believes it partially has solved the "bootlegging" traffic problem which has developed in motor bus transportation.

The certificate was granted, however over the protest of virtually every steam and interurban railroad and regular bus operator in the state.

Such irregular operators as the Buckeye Special Transit company are contemplated to take care of situations where a large party of persons wishes to make a trip together to a certain city or town and have their conveyance directly at their command at all times.

A regular route bus operator is forbidden to go off his route even a city block to gather up a party of passengers to convey them to some city or town on his route.

He is limited to certain streets and roads and if he deviates from them he is liable to lose his certificate. He also must operate on a fixed time schedule.

The irregular operator is designed to carry basket ball, football and other athletic teams directly from one college or school to another, or any kind of picnic parties. He may not operate regularly over any route which is served by a bus, steam or interurban railroad.

In the past, several regular route bus operators have come to grief by going off their routes to pick up and deliver such parties to their destination and return them.

Athletic directors of schools and colleges often have pleaded with the utilities commission to permit a regular bus operator to take their team to some point not on the regular bus route, but in each instance the commission has refused to grant the request, particularly because insurance carried by the regular route bus operators is for the specific route, and should an accident happen when they are off the regular route the insurance companies would not be liable.

The certificate granted by the Buckeye Special Transit company is the first of its kind to be granted by the commission. The commission pointed out that there is nothing to prevent companies now operating over regular routes also to establish the irregular service.

Struck by Lightning, Man Tells Feeling in Note

Evansville, Ind.—Charles Bauer is recovering from the effects of being struck by lightning in an electrical storm.

Bauer and his family were visiting at the home of Leo Hollande, his brother-in-law, when a bolt of lightning passed through the house. Bauer was winding a phonograph when he was struck and made unconscious. When he recovered consciousness he was partly paralyzed and for a time unable to speak, but wrote to say he was suffering a general tingling sensation.

INSTITUTES OF FARMERS IN PICKAWAY

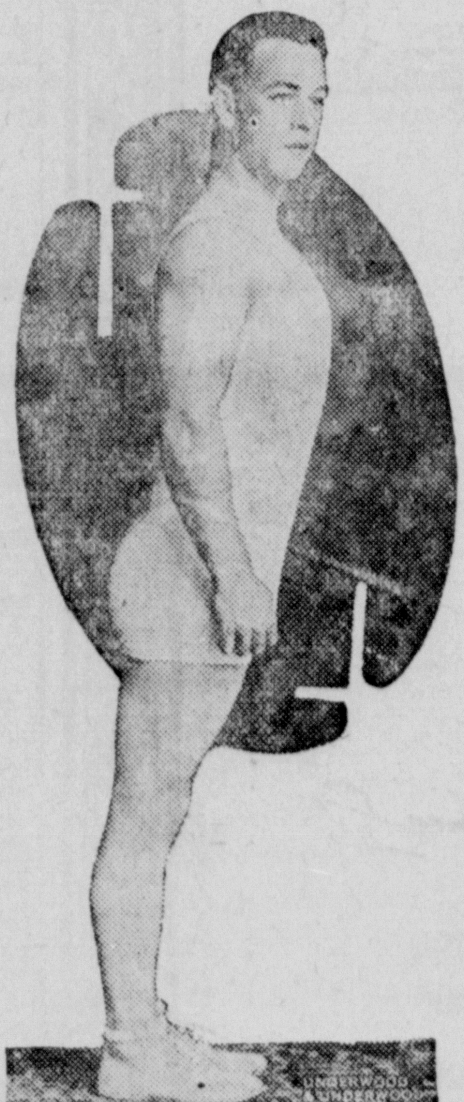

Three Independent Meetings Will be Held Besides Four State Aid Ones.

Thirty farm men and women from nearly every township were on hand for the annual institute conference held at the Farm bureau office Wednesday. F. L. Allen, director of Institutes Ohio State university, was in charge of the meeting. Mr. Allen talked on the benefits of a purposeful institute. The social, economic and moral effects can be much in evidence if the program is planned properly, Mr. Allen explained.

As a result of the conference plans were made for at least three independent institutes besides the four State Aid institutes. The independent ones were promised state aid next year.

The State Aid institutes will be Atlanta, January 4-5; Ashville, January 13-14; Tarlton, January, 15-16; Derby February 8-9.

"MR. AMERICA"

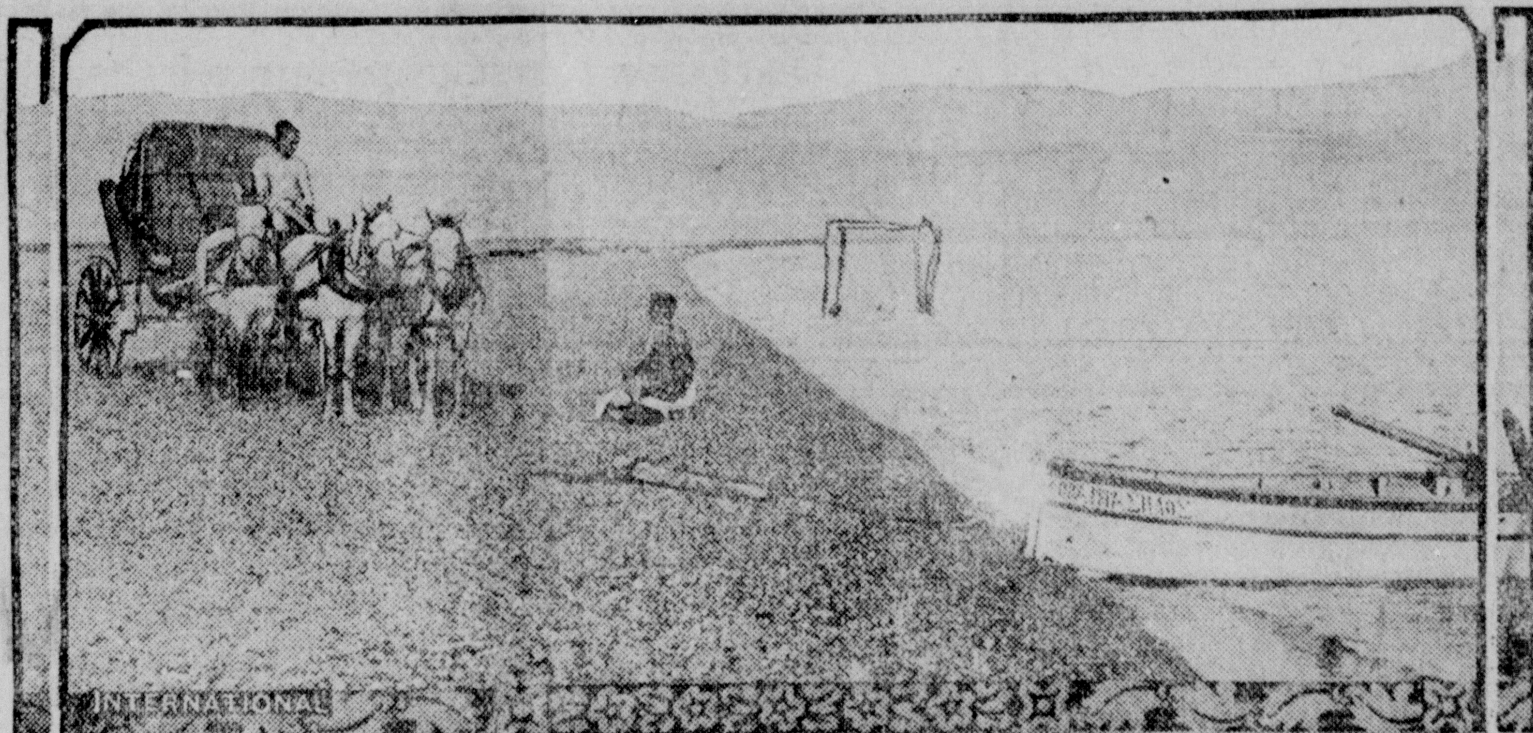

Contests to select a "Miss America" have been so popular that the New York Arts Club determined to try to find a man with perfect physique. Out of 300 contestants Winford S. Turner of Nashua, N. H., was picked as a perfect specimen. He is twenty-six years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 153 pounds. He is a painter, is married and has posed for leading sculptors. He is an ardent athlete and a basket ball player.

Elyria—Alexander Szanty, captain of the Lorain Mercury football team was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond in Mayor Harry Hinkson's court Monday morning when he entered a not guilty plea to a charge of assault and battery.

Szanty was arrested after striking Umpire Harry Forbes in the Elyria Elks-Mercury game. Forbes is in the hospital with a serious injury to his nose and right eye.

Sandusky—Mr. and Mrs. Emory Bird and John Dudley, of Mansfield, are seriously injured in hospitals here as a result of a grade crossing accident Sunday night. Dudley waited for a New York Central freight train to pass, but failed to get the watchman's signal and drove his automobile in front of a locomotive going in the same direction.

Columbus—Governor Viv Donahy Monday issued requisition papers to the governor of Pennsylvania for the extradition of Joseph Schwab, trustee of the Consolidated Bankers' Mortgage company, Niles, Ohio, wanted in Trumbull county on indictments charging embezzlement. Schwab is under arrest at Philadelphia.

Dover—William A. Kerr, 41, was killed today when struck by a turbine belt at the Penn Mold & Manufacturing company's Brass foundry here. His skull was fractured.

Dayton — While their mother was helping with the farm work Sunday night, Minnie Rickard, 14, and Olive Lucile, 4, her sister were burned to death in their country home north of Greenville.

It is believed the children tried to start a fire with gasoline, which ignited their clothing.

Dayton — Glenna Russell, 7, was near death Monday afternoon in a hospital. She received a fractured skull and her left leg was broken when struck Sunday by an automobile driven by Howard Smith, 16. She and her sister, Elizabeth, 17, were both run down and hurled a distance of twenty feet.

ROTARYHANNAS AND MEMBERS ENJOY DINNER

Hawaiian Singers, Dancers and Instrumentalists Add to Pleasures.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner of the Circleville Rotary club was given Monday evening at 6 o'clock in the banquet rooms of the Elks home.

The Rotarians and their wives and sweethearts, the Rotary Anns, eighty in all, had a most delightful evening, due the zeal and capabilities of the committee; T. F. Jeffries, O. L. Cartwright and Paul Johnson.

Turkey, with all the trimmings and ice cream, cake, coffee made up the appetizing menu, and the tables were decorated with chrysanthemums and imitation Champagne bottles were the souvenirs.

A pleasant surprise was the introduction of Bell's famous Hawaiian singers, dancers and instrumentalists, who royally entertained the diners and very generously responded to enthusiastic encores.

Rotary songs in which the Rotary Anns heartily joined added much to the joyous occasion, all voted the meeting a great success and decided to have another in one year.

CORN GROWERS QUALIFY FOR MEMBERSHIP

To date Pickaway county has three 10 acre contestants who have gone over the top in the 10 acre 1000 bushel contest:

Edward C. Rector, with a yield of 127 bushels and on a 29 per cent moisture basis, 119.

Elmer Stout on the T. C. Millar farm, with a yield of 118 bushels and on a 20 per cent moisture basis, 108.

Charles E. Cromley had a yield of 111 bushels, the moisture content of which has not been determined.

Mr. Rector's corn was grown from certified Clarage seed, Mr. Stout's from a mixture of Leaming and Reed's Yellow Dent and Mr. Cromley's from Johnson County White.

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP MAN GROWS BEANS

George M. Wertman in a Most Entertaining Way Gives Experiences With Crop.

George M. Wertman, of Washington township was visited by a Farm Bureau worker a few days ago and the visit was so crammed full of interesting subjects that we feel that it would look good in print.

Mr. Wertman planted four acres of soy beans following his pea crop. These soy beans grew well and part were cut for hay and part were left a few days longer for seed. The hay crop was harvested and the livestock will leave other feed to eat soy bean hay. The beans cut for seed were rained upon and for fear of worse weather they were put in the mow.

He now is feeding fattening hogs soy beans on the vines. The hogs will eat all the corn that they apparently can hold then go and lie down. If soy beans are thrown into the pen the hogs will fight for their individual shares. He has mineral in a self feeder to supplement that deficiency in the corn and soy beans. Upon crawling up into the corn bin above the hogs several bushels of Clarage corn were stored there in crates but the corn he was feeding was of another variety.

When asked how he liked Clarage corn, he remarked, "The more I see of my Clarage corn the better I like it. It is earlier, feeds better, the ears are dryer and it yields better to the shock and I don't believe that the rainy weather will damage it so much as it will my other corn. I have nearly made up my mind to plant all that kind next year."

He also bought a bushel of 70 day corn to follow part of his pea crop next year. Soy beans will be sown again next spring. He was at the time of the visit cleaning out the poultry houses preparatory to putting in dry straw. Mr. Wertman told him that the chickens would get rumpy if the houses were damp and dirty.

Mr. Wertman is chairman of the Washington township Farm bureau one of the six Pickaway County Farm Bureau Extension committeemen and member of the Washington grange.

To Win More Friends 50 Lucky Strikes TAX FREE

We invite every smoker in this city to take advantage of this startling offer. We've told you about Lucky Strike superiority. Your friends have told you. Now know for yourself the value of the toasting process! We make this proposition to win more friends:

The regular price of a tin of 50 Lucky Strikes is 40c

We pay the Government Tax of 15c

You pay the dealer only 25c

Act quickly, as the dealer's allotment at this price is limited.

Get one tin [only one to a person] for home or for office.

The regular price will be in effect when the dealer's supply on this offer is sold.

Smoke these 50 Lucky Strikes. Then you'll know how the 45-minute toasting process adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

TOASTED

Facts About Taxes on Cigarettes

TO the general public, we believe it will be surprising to learn that nearly half of what they pay for cigarettes goes to the government for taxes.

The internal revenue stamp on a package of twenty Lucky Strike cigarettes costs you six cents. On a 40c tin of fifty the revenue stamp costs you fifteen cents.

So nearly one-half of what you pay for cigarettes is spent by you for taxes.

This is certainly the heaviest tax on an article of daily and universal consumption.

The Tobacco Industry and Taxes

The aggregate tax paid by the tobacco business is with one exception, income taxes, the largest item of internal revenue the federal government receives. Last (fiscal) year it amounted to $334,661,405.09.

Of this enormous amount of money the cigarette industry paid $213,143,138.09, or nearly two-thirds of the total tax paid by the entire tobacco business.

We believe you will appreciate that when nearly fifty cents of every dollar paid by you for cigarettes goes to the government, you must receive in cigarettes a value in return for your money that is rarely given in any commodity.

That the public appreciates this great value is shown by the enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes.

Our reasons for this tax free offer

We know this offer induces men to try Lucky Strikes—it "Wins More Friends."

We know that a large percentage of those who get acquainted with Lucky Strikes adopt them.

This isn't philanthropy nor propaganda—just good business, as you'll agree.

The offer is limited. We cannot afford to keep it up.

We make it generous, to attract attention.

Super-quality

Only by immense volume can we produce such an aristocratic cigarette as Lucky Strike at such a democratic price.

Its quality is supreme because it has that costly extra process, toasting, which improves the flavor and adds to the taste of even the finest tobaccos that are used in Lucky Strikes.

Cleanliness and Care in Manufacture

Every Lucky Strike factory is a model of sanitation. Read how Alfred W. McCann, the noted food expert, describes one of our factories: "White walls and ceilings, floors as clean as freshly chiseled marble, cutting machines and wrapping machines that take away from the human hand all detail and leave nothing to the human supervision but the watchfulness of trained eyes."

We know a trial will make you a permanent customer of ours.

Lost to Rochester Clothiers Sunday Afternoon By a Score of 13 to 6.

Circleville Eagles lost yesterday to Rochester Clothiers, of Columbus, by a score of 13 to 6 in a game in which they outplayed the visitors in every material feature except in the important feature of scoring.

As a team the work of the locals was ragged, as individuals, they played very good ball. They lacked unity of action and cohesion, attempted end runs were not afforded sufficient interference and the passing game was uncertain. Four passes were completed and nine incomplete. The four completed all being in a last desperate attempt to tie the score at the close of the game, the ball being carried to the fifteen yard line where it was intercepted by Columbus in the last minute of play. Columbus tried seven passes, completing four for good gains, grounding two and one being intercepted by Circleville.

The statistics of the game show that Circleville carried the ball 135 yards on straight football to 82 yards for the Clothiers. On the four passes completed by each team Circleville made 77 yards and Clothiers 121. Circleville kicked 3 times for 81 yards and Columbus 4 times for 115 yards. Circleville ran kicks back for 59 yards to 10 yards for the visitors and each team lost 15 yards by penalties.

Circleville started as though they would win in a walk. Taking the kick off on the ten yard line they carried the ball to the forty-five where they fumbled to Columbus. Columbus could not gain and a bad pass from center forced them to kick from their thirty, Betts receiving the kick and making a fine run back to Columbus' 34. Circleville again took up the march, Taylor making two fine plunges through the line, the second placing the ball on the five and Griffith went around right end and over the goal line. Columbus soon fumbled after Circleville's kick off and Circleville had carried the ball to the 25 where the quarter ended.

In the second period Circleville lost the ball on downs and Clothiers carried it from their 25 to Circleville's 34 where Circleville secured it on a fumble. Circleville could not gain consistently and kicked from mid-field and Groom downed the defensive back on the 18.

On the first play Murnane took a long pass on the 40 and raced over the west goal for a touchdown. Columbus' kick for goal failed and the score was knotted at 6 all.

Neither team could gain consistently in the third quarter and Columbus held the ball in mid-field when the period ended.

Columbus kicked on the first play in the final period and Circleville opened up a passing game on their own 30 yard line and Schwartz intercepted the second attempt and with a clear field scored the visitors' second touchdown and the extra point was added a moment later by a drop kick.

Circleville passed from this time forward whenever they received the ball and finally worked down to the fifteen yard line where Columbus intercepted a pass just at the close of the game.

On next Thursday the team will make their second journey to Chillicothe and on next Sunday Chillicothe plays in Circleville.

Line-up:

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Within, a girl who was so miserable that she told herself she just couldn't go to church and be thankful. A girl who, in spite of her misery, noted the beauty of the white November morning and the glory of the sun, a red ball of gossamer which sailed above the naked branches of the giant cottonwood tree outside the window. Evidently it was the meeting place for the general assembly of sparrows, for hundreds chattered joyously there over a feast of dead weeds and seeds.When the nearest church bell began to ring so suddenly the birds soared into the air, and from the roof of a skyscraper waited expectantly. A second bell added its resonant call and another and another, until it seemed as tho all the bells in the city were calling her to the morning service.
Elizabeth Ann shuddered and quoted:
"In a whole city full,
Friends she had none."Wasn't it terrible to be in New York alone on Thanksgiving day?
Last year she and dad had furnished the Thanksgiving entertainment for the little country town. Elizabeth Ann grinned as she visualized Nell's bobbing plaits and red trimmed, black dress cut from grandmother's. Ned was in homemade knickers. All the dear, funny kiddies of her Sunday school class rose at her signal and bellowed forth the poem which she had taught, "The breaking waves dashed high."And she had played in the orchestra ever since the age of seven, when dad brought a small violin and taught the fat hands to use the bow. At the recollection of her struggles with those always popping strings, Elizabeth Ann laughed so loudly that the grim little room laughed back and the sun, peeping in, danced a shuffle upon the cold floor. How proud she was when her small bow skipped along the strains of "Captain Jinks." But she would not have persevered if daddy had not stayed by while she practiced "Schubert's Serenade." Often he played on his pet violin, a mellow toned, old singer, which she fairly ached to use. Her greatest ambition was to master that violin.But her school work interfered. Dad was very particular as to her standing. Once when she received a poor grade, the sun tucked its head under its arm and gloomed, for dad did not allow her to touch her violin for seven long days. Oh, how she pleaded and appealed."But, father, I want to get the prize on Music Day. We need the money."
And dad corrected: "We need money, dear, only when it makes us more intelligent, more happy or when it is used to help another. Lessons first, little girl."She was fourteen years old when she was allowed to play in the contest between the best teen-age violinists of Fairfield county. She had her first ready made dress, a simple white with lace ruffles and blue ribbons. At dinner she admired the round face, topped by gold curls and blue ribbons in the sideboard mirror so much that she spilled her milk. The new dress would have suffered if dad had not jumped and grabbed the cloth.Before the concert he spoke to her so reverently, so curiously, that Elizabeth Ann's heart jumped. When he placed the violin in her hand he tried to speak lightly: "My dearest possessions—you and this violin—which is old, so very old, older than this house, in which your dad and grand-dad and great-great-grandmother lived."As Elizabeth looked thoughtfully at the dark brown wood, she remembered her chum's accusation: "Your dad is nutty over an old fiddle. Now, if it was a nice, shiny one, but that old thing!"

When she told him, he had raised it lovingly to his chin, and softly played his favorite song as she sang:

"I know that my Redeemer lives,
And crowns of victory he gives
To those who will His faithful be."Elizabeth Ann's heart sobbed in unison. Why, it was worth a dozen shiny fiddles. It was the loveliest, the best.And on that eventful evening, when her father placed it in her hands, he said: "No hands but mine have rejoiced in producing its music, but tonight my daughter shall play it to the glory of God. Some day it will be yours. Play it always to His glory and keep it, Elizabeth Ann, for when it sings you will hear your father's voice—I will be ever near."Oh, it was a bright, golden night when she received the thunders of applause. But they did not know that she had excelled because of the great fear that she would not glorify Him.
By means of her music she had sung of dad's life, spent in the protection of the weak, in the fight for better schools, churches and homes. The local paper, in glaring headlines and ink splashes, with small town pride prophesied that she would be the world's greatest artist. Soon pupils, each carrying a magical seventy-five cents, came to her home. Money became more plentiful.But dad sighed: "I just must send you to the conservatory."She threw her arms about his neck wondered, why he grew thinner each day, hooted: "As if those vain professors could teach better than you!"
At the first recital of Nell's students each child of the class performed to the great satisfaction of her admiring parent.Afterward dad complimented, and then told her how he had at last arranged for her higher education. "You must be concert meister," he said. "To do this you must go abroad for instruction. I have your passage money and funds to keep you until you locate my friend, who is a violinist of fame. His address is in the secretary."Elizabeth Ann's blue eyes danced.
She had longed for such advantages, but never dreamed they were so near to realization. But there were other thoughts than those of her own personal success. She could not leave her father."But, father, who'll put the buttons in your shirts and cook your meals and—and take care of you?" She was almost choking. When every plea failed, she demanded: "What will I do without you, daddy dear?""I'll miss you daughter, but you are young only once, and youth is the time for preparation and development of talent."He was so emphatic, so eager, that she could not understand; but, next morning, when he did not rise and she called the doctor, he told her many things—that because dad had expected this stopping of his leaky heart, he had sold the house of his fathers to provide for her education. The new owner wished to move in. Everything was ready for her trip. She found everything except the name and address of her father's friend. At first she was dismayed. She finally decided that one so noted as he could be located by consulting a musicians' bureau. She would secure work while she was searching. There was nothing to keep her here.But in New York, where good musicians were many, she had little work. She did not find the violinist, and her father's dream and her own longings seemed far from fulfillment. She did go to church as she had always done. After awhile she organized an orchestra and secured a few pupils to help with her expenses.
They were depending on her today for the music at the Thanksgiving service and, altho Elizabeth Ann was not in thankful mood, tho she wished to stay at home, she remembered dad's wishes and hurriedly dressed. After she had donned her coat and picked up her books and music, she opened her purse and it contained just one silver half dollar.Wouldn't that buy a peach of a Thanksgiving dinner? Elizabeth Ann shook her head dejectedly. What would she do when that was gone? She might pawn her violin. Yesterday, when she stopped at the pawnshop and asked the old man what he was lending on violins, he shrugged his fat

...s and declared that violins were not wanted. But he acted so strangely when he saw it. His eyes glittered. His hands fluttered like a frightened bird's claws as he drew the violin close and demanded sharply: "Sure you didn't steal it?" When she indignantly presented her proof of ownership, he eagerly whispered: "I'll give you fifty dollars—yes?"

But she shook her head. Not yesterday not today. Tomorrow, maybe something would come. She stepped to the door, demanding of herself: "For what must I be thankful? Christian ancestry, good health, pleasant memories of dad and home and church. "Of course, she must go. She was rosy, smiling, confident, when she hurried in and gathered her orchestra together. The sermon was from the text: "He will never leave thee nor forsake thee." What comfort it brought to her anxious heart!

"Won't you take dinner with me?" interrupted one of the girls the moment the service ended.

Oh, she was so glad, not only because she could keep the piece of silver, but for companionship and a friend.

They were chatting joyously when a tall, distinguished looking foreigner approached and, bowing, begged solicitously: "The violin, may I see it?"

Elizabeth Ann handed it over. "It was my father's," she breathed.

"And your name?" his eyes were searching her face.

"Elizabeth Ann Aronson."

He almost dropped the violin. His frantic joy bubbled over. "I'm your father's friend, Professor Zangleine, and just back from the old country four months. I found his letter and went to your old home to get you, as he requested. Nobody knew your address, but a little girl with plaits and a violin, one of your former students, said: 'You'll find 'Lizabeth Ann in a church, sure.' I have went the city over. Today, I thought at home I would stay; but in passing this church I heard that," he caressed the instrument "recognized your father's. It is as he said; you can be a great concertmeister. I will train you. Will you come at once to Mother Zangleine sorrowing over the death of her daughter who left us just two months ago? Will you send your baggage and take up your abode with us?"

Elizabeth Ann smiled thru her happy tears.

"I haven't anything but my few clothes and the violin," she said, "It's a rather homely violin, but its father's and I wouldn't part with for anything. Yesterday I thought I'd have to. A man offered me more than it is worth, fifty dollars!"

"Fifty dollars for that masterpiece!" cried Zangleine, raising his bushy eyebrows and tearing at his heavy hair with his long nailed fingers. "Fifty dollars! Meine child, you didn't sign any papers?"

"I didn't want to cheat the poor man," laughed Elizabeth Ann; she added reverently: "Dad wanted me to keep it, but the fifty dollars was a temptation."

"I offered your father ten thousand dollars for the Strad, but he refused me. Oh, it was God who sent me here to care for you and that valuable violin. Come home with me, 'Lizabeth Ann. Arrangements are made. You do not need to feel that you will be an interloper. We need you. Come."

Elizabeth Ann looked gratefully up at the shining presence in the window over the altar. Thanksgiving! How wonderful! And suppose she had stayed away from the service! She looked about the church in which but a few worshippers remained; visualized herself working at dad's plans. God had not forsaken nor left her. She wanted her father to know. As never before she longed for his voice, and so she reverently raised her violin, singing as she had sung to him: "I know that my Redeemer lives, And crowns of victory He gives To those who will His faithful be."

The vibrations ceased. A woman in the gallery marveled: "Wasn't that wonderful? I seemed to hear a man's voice singing every word. Of course, it was imagination, but—"

She passed on. The professor and Elizabeth Ann looked into each other's brimming eyes and down at the old violin.

"My father's voice!" declared Elizabeth Ann.

"And of my dear friend," breathed the professor. "Shall we do his will?"

"I shall be so happy," choked happy Elizabeth Ann as they moved away.

AMUSEMENTS

It is doubtful if any newspaper story has ever been brought to the screen with such a vivid and true-to-life background as that which enhances "Headlines," the new Encore drama with Alice Joyce, Malcolm McGregor and Virginia Lee Corbin playing the leading roles. It is said that newspaper men with long training in this profession saw to it that the backgrounds and characters really represented the great newspaper profession.

E. H. Griffith, the director, was a former newspaper man. Mr. Griffith went to the offices of the New York World for many big scenes. Bayard Swope, managing editor of the World gave him much assistance, Raymond Harris, a former San Francisco newspaper man wrote the titles and was assisted by Herbert Roemer, another newspaper man. Peter Milne and Arthur Hoerl, who wrote the scenario were both newspaper men at one time. Some of the players have also had newspaper experience.

In this sterling story, the cub reporter does not dash hither and you and finally scoop the world and win the daughter of the managing editor; the reporters do not tote huge notebooks around and write like mad-fire when some one talks; the city editor isn't quite as hard as nails and the sob writer has some of the weaknesses that befall the people about whom she writes.

Alice Joyce has the leading role in this drama and she is capably assisted by Virginia Lee Corbin and Malcolm McGregor, as well as other leading players.

WHEN A WOMAN

Pays the Way, Love Doesn't Always Rule the Roost.

The problem of the rich woman who is the wife of a man less blessed with worldly goods than herself is discussed by Ueland in Liberty, and Mr. Cupid isn't given any of the better of the argument.

After citing a specific case in which divorce followed a series of unhappy events in the lives of just such a couple of her acquaintance, Miss Ueland says: "A few nights ago I met at dinner a distinguished but taciturn professor of psychology who, at the end of the evening, came out of his bashful trance and said the following:

"The more commonplace a man is the more passionately he believes that women are weaklings and fools. One can experiment among one's acquaintances. Tell a man who is unsuccessful financially about some woman who has made money. He will assure you that she must have inherited it. If not, she was undoubtedly the darling of some man who was willing to endow her. Talk to a weak man about the prowess of some woman athlete. He will shut out the unpleasant news by cries of, 'Look at Jack Dempsey.'

"I was driven here by a very stupid taxicab driver. He could not get the address right and had four narrow escapes. As we came along Park Avenue, ahead of us we saw there had been an accident. He turned and yelled in at me, 'I'll bet it was a woman driving that car.'"

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnutgrained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette
in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform
heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no
more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Five hundred invitations to the Matrix dinner, to be held at the Neil house on the evening of December 3, at which Anzia Yezierska, of New York, Russian novelist and short story writer is to be the guest speaker, are being mailed this weekend. The dinner is the second one to be given by Columbus alumnae of Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary and professional journalism sorority. Sophie Kerr was the speaker at the first Matrix dinner two years ago. Miss Amanda Thomas is chairman of the invitation committee and her assistants are: Mrs. Joseph S. Myers, Mrs. Daphne Alloway McVicker, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Arthur R. Weed and Mrs. Clifford Athey. Miss Harriet Daily, a former national vice president of the sorority, is chairman of the committee on general arrangements.

The main dining room of the Neil House will be the scene of the dinner which promises to be one of the month's exclusive and formal affairs. Among Miss Yezierska's best known novels the "Children of Darkness," "Salome of the Tenements" and "Bread Givers."

Mrs. E. A. Allen, of South Scioto street, will be a guest at the dinner.

Sunday, November 22, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Weaver, of Walnut township, was solemnized the marriage of their daughter, Mabel, to Mr. Harold Whitfield Pexton, of Dayton. At 12:30 Miss Ruth Bartz, of Dayton, a friend of the bride, played "At Dawning." Then to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, Rev. J. H. Sudlow, pastor at Hedges chapel Methodist Episcopal church, the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Paul Schenck, of Dayton, entered the living room and awaited the coming of the bride, who entered attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Mary Weaver. During the ceremony, which took place before the mantel banked with fern, smilax and chrysanthemums, Miss Bartz played, "Oh, Promise Me."

The bride wore an ivory satin gown trimmed with pearls and a veil of tulle held with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor was gowned in pink canton crepe and carried pink chrysanthemums. She wore a band of silver in her hair.

The bride's table was decorated in pink roses and smilax. A three course dinner was served to thirty-five guests.

The guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pexton, father and mother of the groom, Mr. J. F. Pexton, Harlan, Iowa; Misses Sarah and Emma Pexton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schenck, Miss Ruth Bartz, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Jenkins and daughter, Marilyn, Mrs. F. G. DeLong, Miss Susan Blair, Mr. Horace Wright and Mr. Dean Antrim, of Dayton; Miss Lucy Montgomery, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Mattie P. Ashbrook, Columbus; Mrs. Clara P. Haas, of Lancaster.

For the past four years the bride has been a successful teacher in the Dayton public schools. The groom is an electrical engineer and is assistant foreman at The Duro Pump company of Dayton. After a shore wedding trip the happy couple will be at home at 313 North Williams street, Dayton, Ohio.

BUSES CAN OPERATE ANYWHERE IN OHIO

UTILITIES COMMISSION HAS GRANTED PERMISSION

To the Buckeye Special Transit Company of Columbus to Conduct Irregular Bus Route Anywhere In the State—But Cannot Operate Regularly Over Any Route Which Is Served By a Bus, Steam or Interurban Railroad.

By granting a certificate Monday to the Buckeye Special Transit company of Columbus, to conduct an irregular bus route anywhere in the state, the utilities commission believes it partially has solved the "bootlegging" traffic problem which has developed in motor bus transportation.

The certificate was granted, however over the protest of virtually every steam and interurban railroad and regular bus operator in the state.

Such irregular operators as the Buckeye Special Transit company are contemplated to take care of situations where a large party of persons wishes to make a trip together to a certain city or town and have their conveyance directly at their command at all times.

A regular route bus operator is forbidden to go off his route even a city block to gather up a party of passengers to convey them to some city or town on his route.

He is limited to certain streets and roads and if he deviates from them he is liable to lose his certificate. He also must operate on a fixed time schedule.

The irregular operator is designed to carry basket ball, football and other athletic teams directly from one college or school to another, or any kind of picnic parties. He may not operate regularly over any route which is served by a bus, steam or interurban railroad.

In the past, several regular route bus operators have come to grief by going off their routes to pick up and deliver such parties to their destination and return them.

Athletic directors of schools and colleges often have plead with the utilities commission to permit a regular bus operator to take their team to some point not on the regular bus route, but in each instance the commission has refused to grant the request, particularly because insurance carried by the regular route bus operators is for the specific route, and should an accident happen when they are off the regular route the insurance companies would not be liable.

The certificate granted by the Buckeye Special Transit company is the first of its kind to be granted by the commission. The commission pointed out that there is nothing to prevent companies now operating over regular routes also to establish the irregular service.

There were 177 protests against the granting of the certificate, but the vote to grant it was unanimous.

R. D. McCollum of Columbus, who several years ago operated jitney buses in East Broad street, Town street and Bryden Road and other Columbus streets, is vice president and general manager of the new company. D. C. Thompson of Cambridge is president, and Forrest Firestone of Cambridge is secretary-treasurer.

INSTITUTES OF FARMERS IN PICKAWAY

Three Independent Meetings Will be Held Besides Four State Aid Ones.

Thirty farm men and women from nearly every township were on hand for the annual institute conference held at the Farm bureau office Wednesday. F. L. Allen, director of Institutes Ohio State university, was in charge of the meeting. Mr. Allen talked on the benefits of a purposeful institute. The social, economic and moral effects can be much in evidence if the program is planned properly, Mr. Allen explained.

As a result of the conference plans were made for at least three independent institutes beside the four State Aid institutes. The Independents were promised state aid next year.

The State Aid institutes will be Atlanta, January 4-5; Ashville, January 13-14; Tarlton, January, 15-16; Derby February 8-9.

Struck by Lightning, Man Tells Feeling in Note

Evansville, Ind.—Charles Bauer is recovering from the effects of being struck by lightning in an electrical storm.

Bauer and his family were visiting at the home of Leo Hollande, his brother-in-law, when a bolt of lightning passed through the house. Bauer was winding a phonograph when he was struck and made unconscious. When he recovered consciousness he was partly paralyzed and for a time unable to speak, but wrote to say he was suffering a general tingling sensation.

Elyria—Alexander Szantay, captain of the Lorain Mercury football team was bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond in Mayor Harry Hinkson's court Monday morning when he entered a not guilty plea to a charge of assault and battery.

Szantay was arrested after striking Empire Harry Forbes in the Elyria Elks-Mercury game. Forbes is in the hospital with a serious injury to his nose and right eye.

Sandusky—Mr. and Mrs. Emory Bird and John Dudley, of Mansfield, are seriously injured in hospitals here as a result of a grade crossing accident Sunday night. Dudley waited for a New York Central freight train to pass, but failed to get the watchman's signal and drove his automobile in front of a locomotive going in the same direction.

Columbus—Governor Viv Donahey Monday issued requisition papers to the governor of Pennsylvania for the extradition of Joseph Schwab, trustee of the Consolidated Bankers' Mortgage company, Niles, Ohio, wanted in Trumbull county on indictments charging embezzlement. Schwab is under arrest at Philadelphia.

Dover—William A. Kerr, 41, was killed today when struck by a turbine belt at the Penn Mold & Manufacturing company's Brass foundry here. His skull was fractured.

Dayton — While their mother was helping with the farm work Sunday night, Minnie Rickard, 14, and Olive Lucile, 4, her sister were burned to death in their country home north of Greenville.

It is believed the children tried to start a fire with gasoline, which ignited their clothing.

Dayton —Glenna Russell, 7, was near death Monday afternoon in a hospital. She received a fractured skull and her left leg was broken when struck Sunday by an automobile driven by Howard Smith, 16. She and her sister, Elizabeth, 17, were both run down and hurled a distance of twenty feet.

ROTARYHANNNS AND MEMBERS ENJOY DINNER

Hawaiian Singers, Dancers and Instrumentalists Add to Pleasures.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner of the Circleville Rotary club was given Monday evening at 6 o'clock in the banquet rooms of the Elks home.

The Rotarians and their wives and sweethearts, the Rotary Anns, eighty in all, had a most delightful evening, due the zeal and capabilities of the committee; T. F. Jeffries, O. L. Cartwright and Paul Johnson.

Turkey, with all the trimmings and ice cream, cake, coffee made up the appetizing menu, and the tables were decorated with chrysanthemums and imitation Champagne bottles were the souvenirs.

A pleasant surprise was the introduction of Bell's famous Hawaiian singers, dancers and instrumentalists, who royally entertained the diners and very generously responded to enthusiastic encores.

Rotary songs in which the Rotary Anns heartily joined added much to the joyous occasion, all voted the meeting a great success and decided to have another in one year.

CORN GROWERS QUALIFY FOR MEMBERSHIP

To date Pickaway county has three 10 acre contestants who have gone over the top in the 10 acre 1000 bushel contest:

Edward C. Rector, with a yield of 127 bushels and on a 20 per cent moisture basis, 119.

Elmer Stout on the T. C. Millar farm, with a yield of 118 bushels and on a 20 per cent moisture basis, 108.

Charles E. Cromley had a yield of 111 bushels, the moisture content of which has not been determined.

Mr. Rector's corn was grown from certified Clarage seed, Mr. Stout's from a mixture of Leaming and Reed's Yellow Dent and Mr. Cromley's from Johnson County White.

Balloon trousers are now in general use but the high altitude record is held by skirts.

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP MAN GROWS BEANS

George M. Wertman in a Most Entertaining Way Gives Experiences With Crop.

George M. Wertman, of Washington township was visited by a Farm Bureau worker a few days ago and the visit was so crammed full of interesting subjects that we feel that it would look good in print.

Mr. Wertman planted four acres of soy beans following his pea crop. These soy beans grew well and part were cut for hay and part were left a few days longer for seed. The hay crop was harvested and the livestock will leave other feed to eat soy bean hay. The beans cut for seed were rained upon and for fear of worse weather they were put in the mow.

He now is feeding fattening hogs soy beans on the vines. The hogs will eat all the corn that they apparently can hold then go and lie down. If soy beans are thrown into the pen the hogs will fight for their individual shares. He has mineral in a self feeder to supplement that deficiency in the corn and soy beans. Upon crawling up into the corn bin above the hogs several bushels of Clarage corn were stored there in crates but the corn he was feeding was of another variety.

When asked how he liked Clarage corn, he remarked, "The more I see of my Clarage corn the better I like it. It is earlier, feeds better, the ears are drier and it yields better to the shock and I don't believe that the rainy weather will damage it so much as it will my other corn. I have nearly made up my mind to plant all that kind next year."

He also bought a bushel of 70 day corn to follow part of his pea crop next year. Soy beans will be sown again next spring. He was at the time of the visit cleaning out the poultry houses preparatory to putting in dry straw. Mr. Wertman told him that the chickens would get rumpy if the houses were damp and dirty.

Mr. Wertman is chairman of the Washington township Farm bureau one of the six Pickaway County Farm Bureau Extension committeemen and member of the Washington grange.

To Win More Friends 50 Lucky Strikes TAX FREE

We invite every smoker in this city to take advantage of this startling offer. We've told you about Lucky Strike superiority. Your friends have told you. Now know for yourself the value of the toasting process! We make this proposition to win more friends:

The regular price of a tin of 50 Lucky Strikes is 40c

We pay the Government Tax of 15c

You pay the dealer only 25c

Act quickly, as the dealer's allotment at this price is limited.

Get one tin [only one to a person] for home or for office.

The regular price will be in effect when the dealer's supply on this offer is sold.

Smoke these 50 Lucky Strikes. Then you'll know how the 45-minute toasting process adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Facts About Taxes on Cigarettes

TO the general public, we believe it will be surprising to learn that nearly half of what they pay for cigarettes goes to the government for taxes.

The internal revenue stamp on a package of twenty Lucky Strike cigarettes costs you six cents. On a 40c tin of fifty the revenue stamp costs you fifteen cents.

So nearly one-half of what you pay for cigarettes is spent by you for taxes.

This is certainly the heaviest tax on an article of daily and universal consumption.

The Tobacco Industry and Taxes

The aggregate tax paid by the tobacco business is with one exception, income taxes, the largest item of internal revenue the federal government receives. Last (fiscal) year it amounted to $334,661,405.09.

Of this enormous amount of money the cigarette industry paid $213,143,138.09, or nearly two-thirds of the total tax paid by the entire tobacco business.

We believe you will appreciate that when nearly fifty cents of every dollar paid by you for cigarettes goes to the government, you must receive in cigarettes a value in return for your money that is rarely given in any commodity.

That the public appreciates this great value is shown by the enormous increase in the consumption of cigarettes.

Our reasons for this tax free offer

We know this offer induces men to try Lucky Strikes—it "Wins More Friends."

We know that a large percentage of those who get acquainted with Lucky Strikes adopt them.

This isn't philanthropy nor propaganda—just good business, as you'll agree.

The offer is limited. We cannot afford to keep it up.

We make it generous, to attract attention.

Super-quality

Only by immense volume can we produce such an aristocratic cigarette as Lucky Strike at such a democratic price.

Its quality is supreme because it has that costly extra process, toasting, which improves the flavor and adds to the taste of even the finest tobaccos that are used in Lucky Strikes.

Cleanliness and Care in Manufacture

Every Lucky Strike factory is a model of sanitation. Read how Alfred W. McCann, the noted food expert, describes one of our factories: "White walls and ceilings, floors as clean as freshly chiseled marble, cutting machines and wrapping machines that take away from the human hand all detail and leave nothing to the human supervision but the watchfulness of trained eyes."

We know a trial will make you a permanent customer of ours.

Lost to Rochester Clothiers Sunday Afternoon By a Score of 13 to 6.

Circleville Eagles lost yesterday to Rochester Clothiers, of Columbus, by a score of 13 to 6 in a game in which they outplayed the visitors in every material feature except in the important feature of scoring.

As a team the work of the locals was ragged, as individuals, they played very good ball. They lacked unity of action and cohesion, attempted end runs were not afforded sufficient interference and the passing game was uncertain. Four passes were completed and nine incomplete. The four completed all being in a last desperate attempt to tie the score at the close of the game, the ball being carried to the fifteen yard line where it was intercepted by Columbus in the last minute of play. Columbus tried seven passes, completing four for good gains, grounding two and one being intercepted by Circleville.

The statistics of the game show that Circleville carried the ball 135 yards on straight football to 82 yards for the Clothiers. On the four passes completed by each team Circleville made 77 yards and Clothiers 121. Circleville kicked 3 times for 81 yards and Columbus 4 times for 115 yards. Circleville ran kicks back for 59 yards to 10 yards for the visitors and each team lost 15 yards by penalties.

Circleville started as though they would win in a walk. Taking the kick off on the ten yard line they carried the ball to the forty-five where they fumbled to Columbus. Columbus could not gain and a bad pass from center forced them to kick from their thirty, Betts receiving the kick and making a fine run back to Columbus' 34. Circleville again took up the march, Taylor making two fine plunges through the line, the second placing the ball on the five and Griffith went around right end and over the goal line. Columbus soon fumbled after Circleville's kick off and Circleville had carried the ball to the 25 where the quarter ended.

In the second period Circleville lost the ball on downs and Clothiers carried it from their 25 to Circleville's 34 where Circleville secured it on a fumble. Circleville could not gain consistently and kicked from mid-field and Groom downed the defensive back on the 18.

On the first play Murnane took a long pass on the 40 and raced over the west goal for a touchdown. Columbus' kick for goal failed and the score was knotted at 6 all.

Neither team could gain consistently in the third quarter and Columbus held the ball in mid-field when the period ended.

Columbus kicked on the first play in the final period and Circleville opened up a passing game on their own 30 yard line and Schwartz intercepted the second attempt and with a clear field scored the visitors' second touchdown and the extra point was added a moment later by a drop kick.

Circleville passed from this time forward whenever they received the ball and finally worked down to the fifteen yard line where Columbus intercepted a pass just at the close of the game.

On next Thursday the team will make their second journey to Chillicothe and on next Sunday Chillicothe plays in Circleville.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. HER FATHER'S VOICE WAS DAUGHTER'S RICH LEGACY

Beautiful Thanksgiving Story Written
By Mrs. Grace Boteler Allen Printed In Girlhood Days, Published In Cincinnati—Filial Devotion To Teachings of Parent Brought Deserved Reward.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, of South Court street, is the author of the following pretty Thanksgiving story published in Girlhood Days, Cincinnati, November 22, of this year:

Elizabeth Ann, so named for her grandmother and her great-great-grandmother, Elizabeth Ann, who had been fighters for the faith, opened her blue eyes and looked wearily about the small, dismal room, thoughtfully thru the window.

Crisp, crackling snow, icicles crystal bright, folks hurrying by on their way to the Thanksgiving service. Within, a girl who was so miserable that she told herself she just couldn't go to church and be thankful. A girl who, in spite of her misery, noted the beauty of the white November morning and the glory of the sun, a red ball of gossamer which sailed above the naked branches of the giant cottonwood tree outside the window. Evidently it was the meeting place for the general assembly of sparrows, for hundreds chattered joyously there over a feast of dead weeds and seeds.

When the nearest church bell began to ring so suddenly the birds soared into the air, and from the roof of a skyscraper waited expectantly. A second bell added its resonant call and another and another, until it seemed as tho all the bells in the city were calling her to the morning service. Elizabeth Ann shuddered and quoted: "In a whole city full, Friends she had none."

Wasn't it terrible to be in New York alone on Thanksgiving day? Last year she and dad had furnished the Thanksgiving entertainment for the little country town. Elizabeth Ann grinned as she visualized Nell's bobbing plaits and red trimmed, black dress cut from grandmother's. Ned was in homemade knickers. All the dear, funny kiddies of her Sunday school class rose at her signal and bellowed forth the poem which she had taught, "The breaking waves dashed high."

And she had played in the orchestra ever since the age of seven, when dad brought a small violin and taught the fat hands to use the bow. At the recollection of her struggles with those always popping strings, Elizabeth Ann laughed so loudly that the grim little room laughed back and the sun, peeping in, danced a shuffle upon the cold floor. How proud she was when her small bow skipped along the strains of "Captain Jinks." But she would not have persevered if daddy had not stayed by while she practiced "Schubert's Serenade." Often he played on his pet violin, a mellow toned, old singer, which she fairly ached to use. Her greatest ambition was to master that violin.

But her school work interfered. Dad was very particular as to her standing. Once when she received a poor grade, the sun tucked its head under its arm and gloomed, for dad did not allow her to touch her violin for seven long days. Oh, how she pleaded and appealed.

"But, father, I want to get the prize on Music Day. We need the money." And dad corrected: "We need money, dear, only when it makes us more intelligent, more happy or when it is used to help another. Lessons first, little girl."

She was fourteen years old when she was allowed to play in the contest between the best teen-age violinists of Fairfield county. She had her first ready made dress, a simple white with lace ruffles and blue ribbons. At dinner she admired the round face, topped by gold curls and blue ribbons in the sideboard mirror so much that she spilled her milk. The new dress would have suffered if dad had not jumped and grabbed the cloth.

Before the concert he spoke to her so reverently, so curiously, that Elizabeth Ann's heart jumped. When he placed the violin in her hand he tried to speak lightly: "My dearest possessions—you and this violin—which is old, so very old, older than this house, in which your dad and granddad and great-great-grandmother lived."

As Elizabeth looked thoughtfully at the dark brown wood, she remembered her chum's accusation: "Your dad is nutty over an old fiddle. Now, if it was a nice, shiny one, but that old thing!"

lovingly to his chin, and softly played his favorite song as she sang: "I know that my Redeemer lives, And crowns of victory he gives To those who will His faithful be."

Elizabeth Ann's heart sobbed in unison. Why, it was worth a dozen shiny fiddles. It was the loveliest, the best. And on that eventful evening, when her father placed it in her hands, he said: "No hands but mine have rejoiced in producing its music, but tonight my daughter shall play it to the glory of God. Some day it will be yours. Play it always to His glory and keep it, Elizabeth Ann, for when it sings you will hear your father's voice—I will be ever near."

Oh, it was a bright, golden night when she received the thunders of applause. But they did not know that she had excelled because of the great fear that she would not glorify Him. By means of her music she had sung of dad's life, spent in the protection of the weak, in the fight for better schools, churches and homes. The local paper, in glaring headlines and ink splashes, with small town pride prophesied that she would be the world's greatest artist. Soon pupils, each carrying a magical seventy-five cents, came to her home. Money became more plentiful.

But dad sighed: "I just must send you to the conservatory." She threw her arms about his neck wondering, why he grew thinner each day, hooted: "As if those vain professors could teach better than you!" At the first recital of Nell's students each child of the class performed to the great satisfaction of her admiring parent.

Afterward dad complimented, and then told her how he had at last arranged for her higher education. "You must be concert meister," he said. "To do this you must go abroad for instruction. I have your passage money and funds to keep you until you locate my friend, who is a violinist of fame. His address is in the secretary. Elizabeth Ann's blue eyes danced. She had longed for such advantages, but never dreamed they were so near to realization. But there were other thoughts than those of her own personal success. She could not leave her father.

"But, father, who'll put the buttons in your shirts and cook your meals and—take care of you?" She was almost choking. When every plea failed, she demanded: "What will I do without you, daddy dear?" "I'll miss you daughter, but you are young only once, and youth is the time for preparation and development of talent."

He was so emphatic, so eager, that she could not understand; but, next morning, when he did not rise and she called the doctor, he told her many things—that because dad had expected this stopping of his leaky heart, he had sold the house of his fathers to provide for her education. The new owner wished to move in. Everything was ready for her trip. She found everything except the name and address of her father's friend. At first she was dismayed. She finally decided that one so noted as he could be located by consulting a musicians' bureau. She would secure work while she was searching. There was nothing to keep her here.

But in New York, where good musicians were many, she had little work. She did not find the violinist, and her father's dream and her own longings seemed far from fulfillment. She did go to church as she had always done. After awhile she organized an orchestra and secured a few pupils to help with her expenses. They were depending on her today for the music at the Thanksgiving service and, altho Elizabeth Ann was not in thankful mood, tho she wished to stay at home, she remembered dad's wishes and hurriedly dressed. After she had donned her coat and picked up her books and music, she opened her purse and it contained just one silver half dollar.

Wouldn't that buy a peach of a Thanksgiving dinner? Elizabeth Ann shook her head dolefully. What would she do when that was gone? She might pawn her violin. Yesterday, when she stopped at the pawnshop and asked the old man what he was lending on violins, he shrugged his fat

...and declared that violins were not wanted. But he acted so strangely when he saw it. His eyes glittered. His hands fluttered like a frightened bird's claws as he drew the violin close and demanded sharply: "Sure you didn't steal it?" When she indignantly presented her proof of ownership, he eagerly whispered: "I'll give you fifty dollars—yes?" But she shook her head. Not yesterday not today. Tomorrow, maybe something would come. She stepped to the door, demanding of herself: "For what must I be thankful? Christian ancestry, good health, pleasant memories of dad and home and church. "Of course, she must go. She was rosy, smiling, confident, when she hurried in and gathered her orchestra together. The sermon was from the text: "He will never leave thee nor forsake thee." What comfort it brought to her anxious heart! "Won't you take dinner with me?" interrupted one of the girls the moment the service ended. Oh, she was so glad, not only because she could keep the piece of silver, but for companionship and a friend. They were chatting joyously when a tall, distinguished looking foreigner approached and, bowing, begged solicitously: "The violin, may I see it?" Elizabeth Ann handed it over. "It was my father's," she breathed. "And your name?" his eyes were searching her face. "Elizabeth Ann Aronson." He almost dropped the violin. His frantic joy bubbled over. "I'm your father's friend, Professor Zangleine, and just back from the old country four months. I found his letter and went to your old home to get you, as he requested. Nobody knew your address, but a little girl with plaits and a violin, one of your former students, said: 'You'll find 'Lizabeth Ann in a church, sure.' I had went the city over. Today, I thought at home I would stay; but in passing this church I heard that," he caressed the instrument 'recognized your father's. It is as he said; you can be a great concert master. I will train you. Will you come at once to Mother Zangleine sorrowing over the death of her daughter who left us just two months ago? Will you send your baggage and take up your abode with us?" Elizabeth Ann smiled thru her happy tears. "I haven't anything but my few clothes and the violin," she said, "It's a rather homely violin, but its father's and I wouldn't part with for anything. Yesterday I thought I'd have to. A man offered me more than it is worth, fifty dollars!" "Fifty dollars for that masterpiece?" cried Zangleine, raising his bushy eyebrows and tearing at his heavy hair with his long nailed fingers. "Fifty dollars! Meine child, you didn't sign any papers?" "I didn't want to cheat the poor man," laughed Elizabeth Ann; she added reverently; "Dad wanted me to keep it, but the fifty dollars was a temptation." "I offered your father ten thousand dollars for the Strad, but he refused me. Oh, it was God who sent me here to care for you and that valuable violin. Come home with me, Elizabeth Ann. Arrangements are made. You do not need to feel that you will be an interloper. We need you. Come." Elizabeth Ann looked gratefully up at the shining presence in the window over the altar. Thanksgiving! How wonderful! And suppose she had stayed away from the service! She looked about the church in which but a few worshippers remained; visualized herself working at dad's plans. God had not forsaken nor left her. She wanted her father to know. As never before she longed for his voice, and so she reverently raised her violin, singing as she had sung to him: "I know that my Redeemer lives, And crowns of victory He gives To those who will His faithful be." The vibrations ceased. A woman in the gallery marveled: "Wasn't that wonderful? I seemed to hear a man's voice singing every word. Of course, it was imagination, but—" She passed on. The professor and Elizabeth Ann looked into each other's brimming eyes and down at the old violin. "My father's voice!" declared Elizabeth Ann. "And of my dear friend," breathed the professor. "Shall we do his will?" "I shall be so happy," choked happy Elizabeth Ann as they moved away.

WHEN A WOMAN

Pays the Way, Love Doesn't Always Rule the Roost.

The problem of the rich woman who is the wife of a man less blessed with worldly goods than herself is discussed by Ueland in Liberty, and Mr. Cupid isn't given any of the better of the argument.

After citing a specific case in which divorce followed a series of unhappy events in the lives of just such a couple of her acquaintance, Miss Ueland says:

"A few nights ago I met at dinner a distinguished but taciturn professor of psychology who, at the end of the evening, came out of his bashful trance and said the following:

"The more commonplace a man is the more passionately he believes that women are weaklings and fools. One can experiment among one's acquaintances. Tell a man who is unsuccessful financially about some woman who has made money. He will assure you that she must have inherited it. If not, she was undoubtedly the darling of some man who was willing to endow her. Talk to a weak man about the prowess of some woman athlete. He will shut out the unpleasant news by cries of, 'Look at Jack Dempsey.'

"I was driven here by a very stupid taxicab driver. He could not get the address right and had four narrow escapes. As we came along Park Avenue, ahead of us we saw there had been an accident. He turned and yelled in at me, 'I'll bet it was a woman driving that car.'"

Heat with Distinction

At last it is proved that a home heater can be good
looking—ornamental, if you will—as well as a practical
heat-producing utility.

The Mueller Furnacette marks the greatest advance in
home heating equipment since the invention of the heating stove. It is the joint creation of master furniture designers and skilled heating engineers. There is distinction in every line of its well-balanced, walnutgrained, vitreous enamel cabinet.

And as for heat—never was there an above-floor heater of any kind that could compare with the Furnacette
in heating efficiency! It heats the whole house by continuously re-circulating warm, moist air thru all the rooms. It provides more comfortable, more uniform
heat than two or three stoves combined, yet uses no
more fuel than an ordinary heating stove.

Sold on convenient monthly payments.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Five hundred invitations to the Matrix dinner, to be held at the Neil house on the evening of December 3, at which Anzia Yezierska, of New York, Russian novelist and short story writer is to be the guest speaker, are being mailed this weekend. The dinner is the second one to be given by Columbus alumnae of Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary and professional journalism sorority. Sophie Kerr was the speaker at the first Matrix dinner two years ago. Miss Amanda Thomas is chairman of the invitation committee and her assistants are: Mrs. Joseph S. Myers, Mrs. Daphne Alloway McVicker, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Arthur R. Weed and Mrs. Clifford Athey. Miss Harriet Daily, a former national vice president of the sorority, is chairman of the committee on general arrangements.

The main dining room of the Neil House will be the scene of the dinner which promises to be one of the month's exclusive and formal affairs. Among Miss Yezierska's best known novels the "Children of Darkness," "Salome of the Tenements" and "Bread Givers."

Mrs. E. A. Allen, of South Scioto street, will be a guest at the dinner.

Sunday, November 22, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Weaver, of Walnut township, was solemnized the marriage of their daughter, Mabel, to Mr. Harold Whitfield Pexton, of Dayton. At 12:30 Miss Ruth Bartz, of Dayton, a friend of the bride, played "At Dawning." Then to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, Rev. J. H. Sudlow, pastor at Hedges chapel Methodist Episcopal church, the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. Paul Schenck, of Dayton, entered the living room and awaited the coming of the bride, who entered attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Mary Weaver. During the ceremony, which took place before the mantel banked with fern, smilax and chrysanthemums, Miss Bartz played, "Oh, Promise Me."

The bride wore an ivory satin gown trimmed with pearls and a veil of tulle held with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor was gown in pink canton crepe and carried pink chrysanthemums. She wore a band of silver in her hair.

The bride's table was decorated in pink roses and smilax. A three course dinner was served to thirty-five guests.

The guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pexton, father and mother of the groom, Mr. J. F. Pexton, Harlan, Iowa; Misses Sarah and Emma Pexton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schenck, Miss Ruth Bartz, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Jenkins and daughter, Marilyn, Mrs. F. G. DeLong, Miss Susan Blair, Mr. Horace Wright and Mr. Dean Antrim, of Dayton; Miss Lucy Montgomery, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Mattie P. Ashbrook, Columbus; Mrs. Clara P. Haas, of Lancaster.

For the past four years the bride has been a successful teacher in the Dayton public schools. The groom is an electrical engineer and is assistant foreman at The Duro Pump company of Dayton. After a shore wedding trip the happy couple will be at home at 313 North Williams street, Dayton, Ohio.
